We are about to enter the game!

TEAM Winsor is no longer on the practice field. The “season” has begun and we are about to be “subbed in”. We are on the sidelines of the game warming up to be ready to play by the start of classes at Sahel Academy on August 17, 2010. Permission has been granted for us to transfer to Associate status with SIM in order to bypass French study for now, use our ministry funds in a little different way, and proceed directly to Niger in order to meet some urgent needs there at the Academy. Our new goal is to depart for Niger in mid to late July.

During this last month, we have sought wise council from Christian friends and family, our church family, the SIM USA office and the Niger field office. All the while, we have been constantly asking God to give us clear guidance as to His will for us. We are confident that He has orchestrated the events according to His perfect plan and will have us in Niger at exactly the right time. As we move forward this appears to be a short term of service for two years. We will then return to the US to finish raising whatever support we still need to be career missionaries and go on to fulfill our French language acquisition.

That means that all the things we thought we had a lot of time to get finished are now much more urgent. Passports, visas, shots, supplies, two years worth of clothes and shoes for growing kids..... Yes, as a matter of fact, our heads are spinning yet we knew all this would need to be done we just had not anticipated having only three months to do it. Currently, the excitement far outweighs the stress, but that is subject to change moment by moment so keep us in your prayers.

We still have some rather significant financial needs. Although we have the funding necessary to begin this process, we do not have enough to finish the game. We do not want to be subbed out at half time. Come join TEAM Winsor. Be a part of what God is doing in Niger, right now. We want to be able to play the full game and then continue with God’s team in Niger far into the future. He has not impressed upon us that He wants us to change our length of service, just the path to get there. So we urge you to jump in and join TEAM Winsor as we get ready to play.
